2 Ohio Teens Found Guilty of Rape

After attack of girl, 16, football players face at least a year in prison

Steubenville, Ohio

Two members of Steubenville's celebrated high school football team were found guilty Sunday of raping a drunken 16-year-old girl, and Ohio's attorney general warned that the case isn't over, saying he is investigating whether coaches, parents and other students broke the law, too.

Trent Mays, 17, and Ma'Lik Richmond, 16, were sentenced to at least a year in juvenile prison in a case that has rocked this Rust Belt city of 18,000 and led to allegations of a cover-up to protect the Steubenville High team, which has won nine state championships. Mays was ordered to serve an additional year for photographing the underage girl naked.

They can be held until they turn 21.

The two broke down in tears after a Juvenile Court judge delivered his verdict. They later apologized to the victim and the community, Richmond struggling to speak through his sobs.

"My life is over," he said.

Mays and Richmond were charged with penetrating the West Virginia girl with their fingers, first in the back seat of a moving car after a mostly underage drinking party on Aug. 11, and then in the basement of a house.

Attorney Walter Madison, right, holds his client, Ma'Lik Richmond, on Sunday after Richmond and Trent Mays were found guilty of raping a drunken 16-year-old girl.

Recording the Attack

The rape of the 16-year-old girl, which happened after a party last summer, shocked many in Steubenville, Ohio, because of the seeming callousness with which other students used their cellphones to record the attack and gossiped about it online. In fact, the case came to light via a barrage of morning-after texts, social media posts and online photos and video. "Many of the things we learned during this trial that our children were saying and doing were profane, were ugly," Judge Thomas Lipps said. (AP)

What's Ahead

Immediately after the verdict, Ohio Attorney General Mike DeWine said he will convene a grand jury next month to investigate whether anyone else should be charged. Noting that 16 people refused to talk, many of them underage, DeWine said possible offenses to be investigated include failure to report a crime. (AP)

"They treated her like a toy," prosecutor Marianne Hemminger said.

Prosecutors argued that the victim was so intoxicated she couldn't consent to sex that night, while the defense contended the girl realized what she was doing and was known to lie.

The girl testified she could not recall what happened but woke up naked in a strange house after drinking at a party.

"It was really scary," she said, adding that she believed she was assaulted when she later read text messages among friends and saw a photo of herself naked, along with a video that made fun of her and the alleged attack.

In sentencing the boys, Judge Thomas Lipps urged parents and others "to have discussions about how you talk to your friends, how you record things on the social media so prevalent today and how you conduct yourself when drinking is put upon you by your friends." ANDREW WELSH-HUGGINS (AP)

Supreme Court to Take On Ariz. Voting Law

Washington

The Supreme Court will struggle this week with the validity of an Arizona law that tries to keep illegal immigrants from voting by demanding all state residents show documents proving their U.S. citizenship before registering to vote in national elections.

The high court will hear arguments Monday over the legality of Arizona's voter-approved requirement that prospective voters document their U.S. citizenship in order to use a registration form produced under the federal "Motor Voter" voter registration law that doesn't require such documentation.

The Obama administration is supporting challengers to the law.

If Arizona can add citizenship requirements, then "each state could impose all manner of its own supplemental requirements," Solicitor General Donald B. Verrilli Jr. said in court papers.

A federal appeals court threw

Broad Implications

Monday's case focuses on voter registration in Arizona, which has tangled frequently with the federal government over immigration issues involving the Mexican border. But it has broader implications because four other states—Alabama, Georgia, Kansas and Tennessee—have similar requirements, and 12 other states are contemplating similar legislation, officials say. (AP) out the part of Arizona's Proposition 200 that added extra citizenship requirements for voter registration, but only after lower federal judges had approved it. Arizona wants the justices to reinstate its requirement.

Kathy McKee, who led the push to get the proposition on the ballot, said voter fraud is still an issue. "For people to conclude there is no problem is just shallow logic," she said. JACQUES BILLEAUD AND JESSE J. HOLLAND (AP)

College Mourns Coach

Crash killed pregnant woman bus driver en route to game

Greensburg, Pa.

A small Catholic college outside Pittsburgh mourned the loss of a women's lacrosse coach who died along with her unborn child when the team's bus crashed on the way to a game, remembering her as warm, outgoing and a natural leader.

Team members and fans at a Seton Hill University baseball game observed a minute of silence Sunday for victims of the crash. Mourners visited a tribute in front of a lacrosse net with signs that read "In memoriam — Kristina Quigley — Forever a Griffin."

Players and coaches from Seton Hill were among 23 people aboard when the bus crashed into a tree Saturday morning on the Pennsylvania Turnpike outside Harrisburg. The team was headed to an afternoon game at Millersville University, about 50 miles from the crash site in central Pennsylvania. Police couldn't immediately ly say what had caused the crash and are still investigating.

The bus operator, Mlaker Charter & Tours of Davidsville, Pa., is up-to-date on its inspections, which include bus and driver safety checks, said Jennifer Kocher, a spokeswoman for the state Public Utility Commission, which regulates bus companies.

Head coach Quigley, 30, of Greensburg, died of her injuries at a hospital, Cumberland County authorities said. Quigley was about six months pregnant, and her unborn son didn't survive. The bus driver, Anthony Guaetta, 61, of Johnstown, died at the scene.

Two victims flown to Penn State Hershey Medical Center remained there Sunday. A woman injured in the crash was discharged Sunday afternoon from another hospital. Almost all the rest were treated and released.

Saturday's game and a Sunday home game were canceled, and a memorial Mass was planned for Sunday night on the Seton Hill campus. KEVIN BEGOS AND RON TODT (AP)

Improve depressive symptoms faster?

Effective medications for treating depression can take weeks or months to achieve their full effects.

NIH researchers seek depressed persons ages 18-65 (unipolar or bipolar) to enroll in a research study involving an experimental drug when compared to placebo. The study seeks to better understand and evaluate the mechanisms in the brain that are related to rapid antidepressant improvement.

This is a 6-to 8-week outpatient and inpatient research study. Research is conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland. Understanding how the rapid reduction of symptoms works may help us design better antidepressants.

THERE'S NO BAND-AID BIG ENOUGH TO COVER THESE CUTS

Billions in proposed Medicare cuts to Hospital Outpatient Clinics threaten access to care in low-income communities.

Looming deficit reduction talks are putting critical Medicare payments for hospital outpatient clinic services at risk. For decades, hospital-based clinics have provided the primary — and sometimes the only — access to physicians for the nation's underserved rural and urban communities. The potential for billions in cuts ignores the added costs hospitals incur for caring for the uninsured and underinsured, and will force these clinics to close.

A Shifting Israel Awaits Obama

President's first trip to country comes as PM re-forms coalition

Washington

When President Barack Obama steps into the Middle East's political cauldron this week, he won't be seeking any grand resolution with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to solve the region's vexing problems.

His goal will be trying to keep the troubles, from Iran's suspected pursuit of a nuclear weapon to the bitter discord between Israelis and Palestinians, from boiling over on his watch.

For much of Obama's first term, White House officials saw little

Obama's Mission

President Barack Obama arrives in Jerusalem on Wednesday for his first trip to Israel as president. His first priority will be resetting his oft-troubled relationship with now-weakened Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. Obama also will look to boost his appeal to a skeptical Israeli public, as well as to frustrated Palestinians. "This is not about accomplishing anything now," said Aaron David Miller of the Woodrow Wilson International Center. "This is what I call a down payment trip." (AP) reason for him to go to the region without a realistic chance for a peace accord between the Israelis and Palestinians. But with the president's one attempt at a U.S.-brokered deal thwarted in his first term and the two sides even more at odds, the White House has shifted thinking.

Officials now see the lowered expectations as a chance to create space for frank conversations between Obama and both sides about what it will take to get back to the negotiating table.

The president's trip comes at a time of political change for Israel.

Netanyahu's power was diminished in January elections, and he struggled to form a government. He finally reached a deal Friday with rival parties, creating a coalition that brings the centrist Yesh Atid and pro-settler Jewish Home parties into the government and excludes the ultra-Orthodox Jewish parties for the first time in a decade.

The coalition will be sworn in Monday, two days before Obama's arrival.

Traveling to the West Bank, Obama will meet with Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas and Prime Minister Salam Fayyad in Ramallah. Obama will also make a 24-hour stop in Jordan, an important U.S. ally. JULIE PAGE (AP)

Syrian Rebels to Form Government

Beirut

Syria's main opposition group is launching its most serious attempt yet to form a rival government to President Bashar Assad's regime, convening in Turkey on Monday to choose an interim prime minister for areas the rebels control.

Twelve candidates are running, including economists, businessmen and a former Syrian Cabinet minister. A vote is expected by Tuesday, a coalition spokesman said.

Some warn setting up such a government could close the door to negotiating an end to Syria's civil war and instead harden the battle lines even more. Another obstacle is asserting the authority of a government picked by the largely exile-based opposition, especially Progress in Pakistan: Pakistan passed a milestone Saturday as its parliament became the first democratically chosen body to finish its five-year term in a country that has faced three coups and persistent political turmoil. But after years of militant attacks, worsening blackouts and faltering economic growth, the Pakistan People's Party, which took office on a wave of sympathy after Benazir Bhutto's assassination, will likely find it more difficult to win voters. The constitution calls for a vote within 60 days, though no date has yet been set. (AP)

Fans Face the Music

Summer concerts can cost a bundle, but there are ways to save

Personal Finance

It's not even spring yet, but tickets for big summer concerts are going fast.

Beyonce and Taylor Swift have already sold out most of their summer tour dates. That means that fans who haven't snapped up tickets will have to pay higher prices.

The best way to score a ticket at its face value is to buy them when they are first released, which for most venues will be on Ticketmaster.com. If those tickets are sold out, you'll have to buy them from resellers, commonly called the "secondary market." Websites such as Stubhub.com and Ebay.com let ticket holders sell unwanted tickets.

But buying from the secondary market often means paying more. There are some ways to save a few dollars, even if the show you want is expected to sell out:

Get First Dibs

If the concert you want to see still hasn't begun selling tickets yet, check if there's a presale happening. Artists will promote a date when tickets go on sale, but most artists begin selling tickets a couple of days before the official date. The presales are usually for people who use certain credit cards. The credit card type depends on the artist. Sometimes the presale will let American Express card holders buy tickets early; other times it will be Citi credit cards or MasterCard.

Try Lesser-Known Venues

Consider hopping on a train or driving farther out of town to save some money. Tickets at marquee venues are generally higher than other venues in the area, says Will Flaherty, director of communications at Seatgeek.com, a website that finds Taylor Swift performs last week during opening night of her "Red" tour in Omaha, Neb. Even if you forgot to buy tickets to a big show, there are options out there.

Wait It Out

If you miss out on buying tickets when they're first released, be patient and wait to buy tickets from the secondary market until it's closer to the concert date. About 48 hours before the concert, sellers start cutting prices to get rid of the tickets, says Alison Salcedo, a spokesperson at Stubhub.com. (AP) tickets for sale on the secondary market. In New York, for example, tickets at Madison Square Garden can be slightly higher than tickets for the Prudential Center in Newark, N.J., which is just a 15-minute train ride away. Some acts will play multiple arenas in the same area.

Blocked Views

More artists are selling tickets behind the stage to make as much money as possible in each venue, says Villanova University economist David Fiorenza, who also advises musicians on their tours. Those tickets are often much cheaper than others because it's harder to see the singer or band.

Fiorenza says that he took his daughter to a Lady Gaga concert two years ago and bought tickets behind the stage. They still were able to see the singer and he saved about $100. "There were video screens in back of the stage," Fiorenza says.

Where to Buy

If the event you want to go to is sold out, your best bet is Stubhub.com or Ebay.com. Both websites have buyer protections that refund your money if the tickets turn out to be fake. The websites also allow you to buy electronic tickets. Another option is Seatgeek.com. The website searches for the cheapest tickets on the secondary market from sites including StubHub and eBay. SeatGeek says all the sites it links to offer buyer protections.

Check the Box Office

Get off the computer and call the venue. Fiorenza says that more tickets are often released days before the concert, so call the venue where the concert is taking place to see whether they have more tickets.

It's also possible that artists will add another show. Flaherty recommends following venues and the artists on social media to catch any announcements. JOSEPH PISANI (AP)

Metro Pitches Silver Line

Riders get a glimpse at the stations set to open later this year

Transit

For more than a decade, planners and politicians have talked about Metro's new Silver Line and all the possibilities it might bring. Now, with the first phase of the nearly $6 billion rail line scheduled to open in just nine months, Metro officials are making perhaps their toughest sales pitch: to riders. Last week, about 400 people attended three open houses across the region to hear how the sixth line in the transit system will operate with existing lines and to give Metro feedback.

"Most riders are going to do the same thing they've always done in their commute, but it's a big change to have a new line open," said Jim Hughes, who's leading the operations plans for the new Silver Line. "It's new and different." At an open house Saturday, riders strolled through a conference room at the Sheraton Crystal City to look at Metro maps and posters featuring estimated travel times. The Silver Line will include five stations and 11 miles of new rail from East Falls Church in Arlington to Wiehle Avenue in Reston, Va. It is expected to open to customers by the end of the year and add 17,000 new riders to the system on an average weekday. "It will be a nice option, but it also could possibly be more chaos as people get used to it," Krystal Ramirez, 24, of Rosslyn said as she studied a map showing how the line will go through Tysons Corner.

The Silver Line is expected to add 17,000 new riders to the system on an average weekday.

At the recent open house forums, some riders have said they're concerned about the lack of parking at the Tysons Corner stations where planners want to create more of a walkable downtown area around the subway. Some of the roughly 8,000 riders who commute between the southern portion of the Blue Line in Northern Virginia and points west are worried that the new line leaves them fewer Blue Line trains. With the Silver Line, that means more trains have to use the Rosslyn tunnel to cross the Potomac River. But the tunnel is already at its capacity of 26 trains an hour, so some trains that now run on the Blue Line will have to switch over to the Yellow Line to make way for Silver Line trains. The number of Blue Line trains affects riders such as Melissa Nasrah, 39, of Crystal City. She rides daily to her job as a lawyer at the Treasury Department, getting off at McPherson Square. Since Metro introduced its Rush Plus service this summer, where it has fewer Blue Line trains, she said her wait in the evenings can be 15 minutes — longer than the 14-minute train ride. "I know this is the long-promised line that's now coming," she said of the Silver Line. "But it feels like the Blue Line is taking a lot of hits." DANA HEDGPETH (THE WASHINGTON POST)

ANNAPOLIS, MD.

Md. Legislature Votes to End Capital Punishment

The Maryland House voted 82 to 56 on Friday to repeal the death penalty, which would make the state the sixth in as many years to end capital punishment. The legislation, which passed the Senate last week, now goes to the desk of Gov. Martin O'Malley. Aides said he will sign the bill in coming weeks. O'Malley credited the grassroots lobbying efforts of the NAACP and faith leaders, turnover in the state Senate and some last-minute conversions with helping to achieve the long-sought victory. (TWP)

19-Year-Old Arrested in Drive-By Mass Shooting

One of two men being sought in connection with last Monday's early morning drive-by mass shooting on North Capitol Street was arrested Friday, according to a D.C. police spokesman. Craig Steven Wilson, 19, of Southeast Washington has been charged with assault with intent to kill. He was linked to the scene through his court-ordered electronic ankle bracelet. The other man named by police, Andrew D. Allen, also 19, has not been charged and is considered a person of interest. (TWP)

Homeless Shelter in Courthouse Approved

The Arlington County Board on Saturday unanimously approved a permit to open a year-round, overnight homeless shelter in the Courthouse neighborhood. The Homeless Services Center, which will have 50 permanent beds and 25 additional beds for winter, is expected to open in 2014. It will occupy two floors of a county-owned building and offer support services, a dining area and program space. County Board Chairman Walter Tejada says Arlington has long needed a year-round homeless shelter. (AP)

School Takeover: Md. Edition?

County official moves to wrest control of Pr. George's system

Upper Marlboro, Md.

Prince George's County Executive Rushern L. Baker III is planning a takeover of the county's struggling school system, seeking state legislation that would put him in charge of the school superintendent and $1.7 billion budget.

Should Baker succeed, it would mark a dramatic shift in power and result in a hybrid of the restructurings that have taken place across the country, including the District and New York, where reform-minded executives have wrested control of embattled school systems.

The proposal comes after years of turmoil in Maryland's second-largest school system, which has seen rapid turnover of its superintendents and only modest improvement in student performance.

Baker said he is proposing the takeover now because the school system is looking to hire a superintendent and he believes that residents should have someone — the county executive — to hold accountable for the schools.

There was mixed reaction among state officials in Annapolis, whose approval Baker needs to proceed with his plan.

Fate of SE Hospital Still Unsettled

Washington

Nearly three years after the city seized control of United Medical Center, the fate of the 354-bed facility on Southern Avenue SE remains uncertain.

Hopes of quickly selling the hospital to a private company have fizzled, and unpaid bills have mounted to the point that officials say they will soon need another cash infusion from the city, adding to the more than $100 million the city has spent on the hospital since 2007.

The ongoing saga of the hospital underscores the disconnect between city officials' commitments to keeping the facility open and their general reluctance to either subsidize its operations or significantly change how it operates.

Patient numbers are at record highs, growing 13 percent in the past year.

But with about 90 percent of those patients on government health coverage or uninsured, the hospital's bottom line is tenuous.

The hospital has less than a week's cash on hand, said Michael E. Davis, the hospital's chief financial officer. MIKE DEBONIS

Raymond Jackson
and Doug Meyer

Two best friends with prostate cancer. Five quick CyberKnife® treatments saved them both.

When Doug learned he had prostate cancer, he wanted a treatment to minimize his downtime. His research led him to MedStar Georgetown University Hospital and the painless, nonsurgical CyberKnife. So when his friend Raymond was also diagnosed with prostate cancer, Doug immediately recommended the experienced CyberKnife team at MedStar Georgetown that saved his life.

CyberKnife destroys tumors using radiation, with minimal harm to the healthy surrounding tissue. And, there is no overnight stay and the risk of major side effects is low. Unlike traditional radiation treatment, which requires as many as 40 treatments, CyberKnife can be done in just five treatments. So patients like Doug and Raymond are back enjoying their lives in no time.

Sports

Rion Brown scored 12 points in Miami's win over North Carolina on Sunday.

Miami Wins Its 1st ACC Tournament

Ole Miss, Ohio State and St. Louis are also conference champs

College Basketball

Shane Larkin and ninth-ranked Miami now have the program's first ACC tournament championship to go with its first regular-season title.

Larkin scored a career-high 28 points, eight coming in the final 2½ minutes, to help No. 9 Miami pull away late to beat North Carolina 87-77 in Sunday's final.

Trey McKinney Jones added a career-high 20 points for the top-seeded Hurricanes (27-6), including the go-ahead 3-pointer from the left corner with 6:27 left that started Miami's final push to secure the title.

SEC

Murphy Holloway scored 23 points and Marshall Henderson had 21 as the Mississippi Rebels gave coach Andy Kennedy his first NCAA tournament berth by upsetting 13th-ranked Florida 66-63 for the SEC tournament championship.

The Rebels (26-8) now have won seven of eight, grabbing their first tournament title since 1981 and their second ever.

Big Ten

DeShaun Thomas scored 17 points and No. 10 Ohio State used its stout defense to beat No. 22 Wisconsin 50-43 for the Big Ten tournament title.

Thomas was 6-for-19 from the field but made some big free throws down the stretch to lead the Buckeyes to their fifth tournament title in nine appearances. Aaron Craft had nine points and six rebounds, and LaQuinton Ross also delivered a couple of huge plays for Ohio State.

Atlantic 10

Kwamain Mitchell scored 19 points, including a huge 3-pointer with the shot clock winding down, and tournament MVP Dwayne Evans added 16 to lead No. 16 Saint Louis to its first Atlantic 10 tourney title with a 62-56 win over No. 25 VCU.

The veteran Billikens stayed just poised enough against the Rams' frenetic defensive pressure to win only the second conference tournament crown in school history. (AP)

The Way Of the Lion

Snoop Dogg traveled to Jamaica and came back 'Reincarnated' as reggae mon Snoop Lion

Personalities

Snoop Lion won't fire back at critics who say his backing of the Rastafari movement is simply another gimmick from one of hip-hop's savviest self-marketers. But Snoop Dogg will. Reggae pioneer Bunny Wailer is the most notable skeptic. Wailer bestowed the Lion name on Snoop, but has since questioned the 41-year-old's intentions and commitment to Rasta ideology.

Asked to respond, Snoop's face registers a flash of malice followed by a devilish smile: "If I was Snoop Dogg:

'[Expletive] Bunny Wailer.' But I'm Snoop Lion right now, so I'm chilling," he says.

He is using the name to release a reggae- and dancehall-focused album, "Reincarnated" (due April 23), and an accompanying documentary (out in limited release) that tracks his trip to Jamaica and exploration of Rasta culture. Produced by Major Lazer — which includes DJ/producer Diplo — the album features guests including Chris Brown, Drake and Jamaica's Mr. Vegas and Mavado.

What has been religion's place in your life up until now?

As a kid, I was pushed into the Baptist church, taught that way. As an adult, I was able to seek out information on my own to find out that the Muslim religion, Rastafari, Baptist, Christian — that they all the same. They all God-fearing people and love is love. ... I feel like religion should be based on the way you live and the way you treat yourself and treat others.

How does Rastafarianism fit in

"To me, the Lion is the growth of Snoop Dogg — me growing into the next phase of my musical career, the next phase of my life."

Nicknames

Dogg Gone?

Snoop makes it clear that his Lion persona is less a drastic transformation than part of ongoing personal growth. "I can't throw that person away and get rid of him," he says. "I can never get rid of who I am. I'm an East Side Long Beach Rollin 20s Crip, first and foremost. ... I'm Snoop Doggy Dogg, then I'm Snoop Dogg, then I'm Snoop Lion. But it's all the same." (AP) there for you? Do you feel like you converted?

I feel like I'm a part of it. I feel like I'm a part of anything that's positive, that's loving. And Rastafari is so connected to who I am that I feel like I'm a part of it. Because it is me. It is what I am. And through the spirit of it, you want to learn more about it. ... I'm just learning. So it's all brand new to me.

What was your goal for the album? There's very little cursing on it.

It's a goal to have songs that represent who I am today. A lot of the songs I got represent who I was, not who I am. It is my music. I love it. It's my baby. So I'm not going to ever denounce it. It's just that it'd be nice to have a song about peace and love and happiness and about what's going on in the world and about addressing some real issues, when that's what's important right now. As opposed to just partying all the time and having a good time. That's not what I'm on.

Do you only make reggae music now?

To me it's not about record sales, so I believe I'm going to do it whenever I want to. ... [Reggae is] fun. So anytime it's fun, it's to be done over and over again. RYAN PEARSON (AP)

Give Her a Break: Tina Fey said she has no interest in running "Saturday Night Live" should Lorne Michaels ever decide to retire from helming the sketch-comedy series. "He is the center of that show," Fey told the Huffington Post in an interview Friday, "and I think ... when he wants to stop, it should just stop." This follows comments the former "SNL" and "30 Rock" star made last month about her level of interest in hosting the Oscars, which, as with running "SNL," is at less than zero. (EXPRESS)

'Bates Motel' gives the 'Psycho' killer his own origin story

Series Premieres

A&E
10:00

"Bates Motel" is not quite a prequel to "Psycho," though it acts like one.

Set in the modern day, it follows a 17-year-old Norman (Freddie Highmore) through events that, we assume, will eventually turn him into a killer who obeys the phantom voice of his dead mother. For now, he's a sweet kid with an unhealthy attachment to his over-protective — and very much alive — mom, Norma (Vera Farmiga). Highmore and Farmiga are perfectly cast, immediately elevating the show's potential.

After the accidental (yeah, right) death of her husband, Norma and her son take the insurance money, leave Arizona and move to the Oregon coast in search of a new life. Norma has purchased, at foreclosure, an old motel along the highway.

Mother and son optimistically set about prepping the motel for new business, but it's not long before they get mired in the muck. Feel free to fast-forward through the scene where the nasty former owner of the place attacks and rapes Norma and she then stabs him about 20 times.

In a panic, Norma persuades poor Norman to help her dump the body in a lake. This grisly errand seals and distorts the intimate secrets the mother and son share.

Norman tries to fit in at his new high school, but he's more transfixed by the lurid bondage-themed manga sketchbook he discovers in the motel and then investigates. Here is where "Bates Motel" starts to take on the more sinister shades of "The Killing." In this town, it seems, everyone is a psycho.

“Even this audience isn't keen on [Orly] Taitz's sermon, nor the panelists, and someone [shouted] 'sit down.'”

— HUNTER AT DAILYKOS.COM explains how the leading figure in the Obama birther movement was treated at the 2013 Conservative Political Action Conference's "Uninvited" panel Saturday after asking why no one was talking about the president's birth certificate.

“Is Giorgos Katidis the dumbest man in Greece? First he does a Nazi salute, then he claims he doesn't know what it is.”

— @TOHUGHES reacts to the story of the AEK Athens midfielder who was banned from his team for life by Greece's soccer federation after he gave a Nazi salute while celebrating a goal in the Superleague.

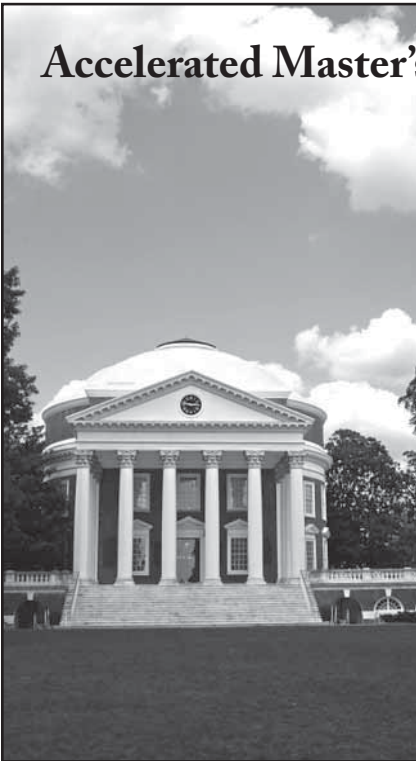

“I don't like when people talk all willy nilly about something being discussed on Twitter without [reading] ANYthing about the subject outside of Twitter.”

— @DREAMHAMPTON offers some advice on how to argue on the social media site.

“Getting my kids to school on time is like organizing a moon landing with tiny, grumpy astronauts.”

— @AMISHSCHOOL describes what his mornings are like these days.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You're not in charge of everything or everyone, so you must be ready to let certain things happen without imposing your own will on them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The outcome of a surprise situation is likely to be quite advantageous to you — even though it may require some extra work on your part.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The time has come for you to set aside a current project and focus instead on plans for a new endeavor. You've been too long at a standstill.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may be asked to do something that you suspect is not entirely on the up-and-up. Indeed, now is not the time to break any rules.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone will seem to have your number today and use that to his or her advantage despite your own efforts. Wait until tomorrow, however!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others are not likely to react to you the way you expect — or hope. As a result, you'll have to adapt quickly to a changing scene.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You aren't the kind to sit back and let another take control of something that is entirely within your own jurisdiction — so don't!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You're in the driver's seat, but you may not have the keys! Yes, it's likely to be that kind of day: full of opportunity and frustration.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) If you speak your mind today — which you must do — it should come as no surprise to you when others answer in kind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You're likely to uncover something that has you rethinking one or two key strategies. Much is not as it seems today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It doesn't get any easier, necessarily, but today the road is likely to be just a bit smoother than expected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may be facing a rather dicey situation at home, thanks to an unexpected revelation and the untimely discovery of a clue.

The hackers who have been posting the financial information of Britney Spears and other celebrities are finished. On their website they wrote, "We have enjoyed every minute of the past 12 days of providing entertainment and laughs to all of you, sadly it's time to say bon voyage." (EXPRESS)

AILINGLil Wayne Hospitalized After Seizure on Friday

Lil Wayne has been hospitalized, but according to his camp and his official Twitter account, he's OK. The multi-platinum rapper was hospitalized in Los Angeles on Friday and reps confirmed he was "recovering." He tweeted Friday night: "I'm good everybody. Thx for the prayers and love."

An unnamed source said Lil Wayne had a seizure. (AP)

Lil Wayne has a history of seizures that have led to previous hospital visits.

Ailing Part IIMorrissey, Sick, Cancels Tour

Health concerns are forcing Morrissey to cancel his North American tour. His rep said Friday that the singer has to take a break after suffering a series of maladies, including double pneumonia, a bleeding ulcer and a gastrointestinal problem called Barrett's esophagus. Fans can get refunds where they purchased their tickets. (AP)

Ryan, Julianne and Julianne's thick coating of slime go out on the town.

SPLITSToo Busy to Love

Ryan Seacrest and Julianne Hough have split up after nearly three years together, according to Usmagazine.com. "Their schedules were too hectic," an unnamed source said. "I think they both just sort of knew they couldn't do it anymore. The travel and lifestyle got to be too much. Who knows if this is just for now, but I think this is for good." The pair met when Seacrest interviewed Hough and her then-boyfriend for "On Air with Ryan Seacrest." (EXPRESS)

AUTHORITY*Now You Can Do as She Says AND as She Does

Patti Stanger, star of Bravo's "Millionaire Matchmaker," is engaged to boyfriend David Krause, Radaronline.com reported. "Her relationship with David and their engagement is expected to play a big role in the new season of 'Millionaire Matchmaker,'" said an unnamed source. (EXPRESS)

"I know it's horrible — and I'm admitting to bribery — but I've given them an M&M [for putting] sunscreen on before."
